DOA Deputy Secretary Patton Recognized with the NASCA National Distinguished Deputy Award

Madison, Wis. - Chris Patton, Deputy Secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Administration, was recently recognized with the National Distinguished Deputy Award from the National Association of State Chief Administrators (NASCA).

Patton received the honor during NASCA's annual award ceremony at 2022 Institute on Management and Leadership in Scottsdale, Arizona.

"Chris is an extraordinary person and a critical leader in our administration, including playing an invaluable role in my administration's COVID-19 response efforts," said Wisconsin Governor, Tony Evers. "His leadership at the State Emergency Operations Center played a key part in our state's successful response from strong private-public partnerships, a robust testing program, and procuring PPE and ventilators, among other important contributions. He is an exemplary public servant and there is no question that Chris's work saved lives across our state."

NASCA is an association devoted to state Chief Administrators and their senior leadership teams, and the annual National Distinguished Deputy Award recognizes outstanding contributions to the work of state government operations. Additional information is available here:
